City Hall vote set Tuesday

Voters will decide Tuesday the future of plans to build a new $1.3 million city hall facility for Canyon during a special election.

Polls will open at 8 a.m. and will close at 7 p.m. at the Canyon community center, 16th Street and 3rd Avenue.

More than 5000 persons are registered to vote in the Tuesday special balloting and city officials are shy about predicting the turn-out for what has become a controversial issue.

Voters will not be voting Tuesday on whether or not the city should issue bonds to finance the structure. The Tuesday vote does not pertain to financing of the building.

Rather, voters will vote "yes" or "no" on the following ballot statement:

RESOLVED: That the City Commission be, and is hereby, authorized to proceed with the construction of municipal facilities through competitive bidding.

If voters return a "yes" vote, commissioners will proceed with plans to construct the new facility and will probably seek bids in early July for the project. If voters return a "no" vote, city commissioners have not predicted their future course of action.

The Tuesday election was called by commissioners after citizens petitioned to have a vote to allow voters to decide whether or not the building should be constructed.

Architectural plans are complete for the building and specifications have likewise been completed and readied for seeking bids.

The building as planned will sit on a city block bounded by 3rd Avenue on the north, and 16th Street and 17th Street on the west and east consecutively.

It will include under one roof a new fire station with open bays and office space, a new police department, a new library and new city administrative offices including a drive-up window for payment of bills.

The building would replace current facilities including a city hall constructed in the early part of the century, a fire department which commissioners say is a fire hazard, a police department located in an old lumber yard office and a library located in an old World War II barracks.

Commissioners began planning the new facility more than a year ago and hired Dallas-Omaha architectural firm HD&R to prepare a master plan and further plans.

Included in the master plan is a new community center building which would be separate from the main city hall project. Commissioners have decided not to construct the community center at this time.

Absentee balloting for the Tuesday election ended at 5 p.m. Friday with more than two dozen persons casting ballots.

City commissioners went on the offensive about two weeks ago after calling the election on the Tuesday date, visiting the various civic clubs with presentations.

While an organized effort promoting construction of the city hall has been active in recent weeks, no organized group against construction of the building has emerged.

Individuals have circulated handbills and run advertisements against the issue.

Costs, revenues noted for project

Construction of a new city hall, to house fire, police, library and administrative services, is expected to cost about $1,338,288, according to projections by architects.

The following is the breakdown of proposed financing for the construction project. City commissioners have gone on record that the project will not cause an increase in taxes and will not involve a bond issue.

PROJECTED COSTS

estimated construction cost	$1,190,088
contingency, furnishings	75,000
finance agent, legal fees	15,000
remaining architect fee	58,000
Total	$1,338,288

Mrs. Strain wins partial victory over TMRS

Marguerite Strain, the long-time city employee who for more than a year has contended the city's retirement system discriminates against women, has won at least a partial victory in her battle for equal retirement benefits.

That partial victory came in the form of a lengthy letter last week to City Manager George Loudder from the San Antonio office of the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The letter, the final format of a decision reached recently by the federal commission concerning Mrs. Strain's complaints, says the commission "has decided that there is reasonable cause to believe that the City of Canyon has violated Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended by the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972 . . ."

Mrs. Strain filed complaints with the EEOC nearly two years ago that the Texas Municipal Retirement System, which the city is a member of for its employees, discriminates against women municipal employee members in that it pays retirement benefits of smaller amounts to women than to men.

She specifically cited the actuarial tables used by the TMRS to figure retirement benefits, tables which show that women must work five years longer than men to receive equal benefits.

Mrs. Strain's victory could portend trouble for other retirement systems in the state which operate in a fashion similar to the TMRS. Several complaints have been filed by other women in other parts of the state alleging much the same issues. The Texas District and County Retirement System, of which Randall County is a member, also figures its benefits in a manner similar to that used by TMRS.

The decision rendered by the EEOC on the case of Mrs. Strain is an administrative decision and does not have the force of law or a judicial order. But, says the commission letter to Loudder, if an equitable agreement cannot be reached between Mrs. Strain and the city and retirement system, Mrs. Strain or the EEOC can take the problem into federal district court for a solution.

Mrs. Strain said Friday she's still cautious in her optimism that the TMRS will change its method of figuring benefits to give an equal payment to all members.

"I feel like we made a start," she said. "At least the EEOC is on my side."

Loudder was informed of the EEOC decision Friday in a letter from Gus Gonzales, deputy district director of the San Antonio office.

"In the near future, a representative of this office will contact you or your designated representative to discuss ways of correcting this matter," the letter states. "Hopefully, there will be effected a written agreement between you and the Charging Party (Mrs. Strain), with the commission as an interested third party.

"If we are not successful in negotiating such an agreement, we will so notify the Charging Party who may then seek relief in Federal Court. In addition, we must then consider whether the file will be deferred to the U.S. Attorney General for possible suit under Section 706 of Title VII."

The letter includes a return notification for Loudder to send back to the EEOC with a statement as to whether the city will be willing to negotiate with Mrs. Strain or whether the city will not be willing to negotiate.

"Our response will be this," Loudder said. "We'll notify them that we've received their decision and as we've noted before we cannot make alterations in the Texas Municipal Retirement System and that all action detailed in this decision should be directed directly to the TMRS. We'll help in any way we can."

Loudder said the city cannot

The final bell for Canyon public school students rang at 2:30 p.m. Friday May 31. Then the rush for the door and the start of a three month vacation for the youngsters. Students at Rex Reeves Elementary School left Friday taking with them reminders of the past school year.

Decision impact on co. system

A federal decision rendered recently which places the future of the retirement system which services city employees in some shadow could also impact on the future of the system which services county employees here.

The Texas District and County Employee Retirement System, through which Randall County employees receive retirement benefits and pay in monthly payments, uses the same kind of actuarial tables and formula to figure retirement benefits as does the Texas Municipal Retirement System.

The TMRS was struck a blow last week by notification that the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission had decided that the TMRS system of figuring benefits discriminates against women.

Although the EEOC decision does not pack the punch of a judicial decision or of law, it is expected to give second thoughts to managers of other similar retirement systems in the state.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said last week the EEOC decision could have far-reaching effects for other such systems, including the system for county employees.

"Certainly if the city system is in violation, then all other systems with similar policies would be in violation," Dowlen said.

County Judge Woody Pond, who two years ago was made aware of the similarity of the County seeks federal windfall from overlooked hospital funds

The federal cornucopia could share another $60,000 or $70,000 with Randall County if officials agree with County Judge Woody Pond's contention that the county has it coming due to a previous oversight.

Pond wrote a letter last week to Graham W. Watt, director of the federal Office of Revenue Sharing to seek the extra funds he says were never forthcoming because the county never asked for them.

The basis for the letter was Pond's recent discovery that tax revenue collected through hospital districts are eligible to be counted in with the county's tax base in figuring entitlements for federal revenue sharing money.

"Only last week," Pond wrote Watt, "we learned that taxes collected by or for a separate hospital district, located within a county, are eligible for and should be included in the total tax effort of that county."

The revenue taken in during 1972 by the Amarillo Hospital District, which extends deep into the northern end of Randall County and the revenue collected through taxes by the South Randall County Hospital District should have been counted in the original figures to calculate the county's share of federal revenue money.

So far, the county has received about half of an anticipated $500,000 from federal revenue sharing sources.

Pond said the additional tax base should give the county an extra $60,000 to $70,000 in federal funds.

But, he noted, his figures could differ substantially with those prepared in Washington. And, he said, there is no sure cinch that the federal office will accept his contention and allow the extra tax base to be included in calculations.

Pond said he figured the proportionate share of the tax revenue to be claimed by Randall County for inclusion in the calculated formula would be based on population with 37 per cent of the tax revenue credited to the county.

During 1972, he says in his letter, the City of Amarillo collected $1,756,135 for the hospital district. Based on his proportion figures, the county tax base would benefit to the tune of $655,000 from the district.

Randall County collected $96,000 for the South Randall County Hospital District in 1972

Deputies, city police face increasing danger of suits

Randall County sheriff's deputies and possibly Canyon policemen are running the risk of personal financial ruin because they have no protection from the escalating danger of lawsuits.

Randall County does not carry insurance to protect deputies or Sheriff Cliff Longest from the possibility of civil rights suits, despite the fact that the deputies are often in a position to be sued.

Canyon city officials report they're not sure whether the city insurance covers city policemen in the event of such suits.

In increasing numbers of cases particularly downstate, police officers and sheriff's deputies are being sued in connection with civil rights issues and in such suits they face the possibility of financial ruin.

The Dallas Morning News reported recently that 15 civil actions have been filed against county employees since 1970 in that county.

One recent suit which caused increased anxiety for Dallas officials involved two Dallas police detectives and a fire investigator who were named in a suit filed by the mother of a slain burglar.

The mother contends her son's civil rights were violated when her son was killed as he was about to set fire to a building. She is seeking $500,000 in damages.

Another case, this one on the East coast was termed a "landmark" decision by the Morning News. The case ended with a decision that a police chief would be liable for the actions of his men without proof of intent or fault.

While none of the three officials here who are most open to civil suits have ever been sued, they admit the possibility is there and the menace is growing.

Randall County was sued last week by an Amarillo man who alleged he was injured in a collision with a county-owned road grader. He seeks $50,000 in damages. The county itself is covered by insurance to face the suit.

But, Sheriff Cliff Longest and Dist. Atty. George Dowlen report they have no such safety valve. City Manager George Loudder is unsure that the city insurance policy covering policemen includes protection against civil rights suits.

Dowlen said he has a general coverage policy but "I doubt very seriously that the policy I have covers that."

Dowlen, who is charged by a new state law to defend any county employee sued in the course of

Fulgenzi-- 'funds use authorized'

County Commissioner John Fulgenzi told The News Friday he feels he violated no policy and certainly didn't seek county funds without authorization for two trips to Austin recently by airplane.

The News had reported in its Thursday issue that Fulgenzi made two recent flights to Austin to lobby at the constitutional convention and sought reimbursement from the county for both trips.

The News reported that the flights and reimbursement for the flights were in contradiction to a policy Fulgenzi initiated by motion last January which stipulated that county officials would be allowed 12 cents per mile and $30 per diem for trips.

Fulgenzi said Friday the policy he invoked in January applied only to county officials who were going to attend conferences or workshops and not to officials needed to testify before the legislature or on official county business.

Fulgenzi said County Judge Woody Pond asked him to fly to Austin on Wednesday, May 22, and he checked with several other county commissioners to get verbal approval before reserving a seat on a Braniff flight.

He said a similar situation occurred in mid-March, when he also flew to Austin.

Fulgenzi said he feels the trip was authorized and was subject to payment by the county.

He corrected The News' math in figuring costs for the trips. The News erroneously reported that had Fulgenzi traveled for 12

Grant given WTSU prof. to study wind energy use

Dr. Vaughan Nelson, head of the West Texas State University physics department, and an Amarillo College professor have been awarded a $14,000 grant to study the potential for wind-generated power in Texas.

Awarding of the grant was announced Saturday by State Sen. Max Sherman's office. The funds are supplied by the Governor's Energy Advisory Council.

Over the next five months Nelson and AC professor Earl Gilmore will collect data state-wide from national Weather Service reporting stations. They will use the data to assemble maps and charts on wind speeds and directions in the state and adjoining areas of the bordering states.

"We already know," says Nelson, "that the Texas Panhandle has one of the most constant wind patterns in the nation, both in terms of direction and speed. This would be the most logical place for a major wind energy test site to be located."

"Wind energy has never been fully exploited in the Southwest," said Gilmore. "Wind chargers were used in rural areas during the '30s and the '40s. They were replaced by rural electrification projects. It looks like we may be going back to wind chargers only on a much larger scale."

The research done by the pair may very well prove the feasibility of large wind energy machines supplying at least some electrical power in a more energy-conscious society.

Nelson and Gilmore have been working more than five years on data collection to detect wind speeds and direction in the Panhandle.

They issued a report more than a year ago which noted that the Panhandle would be an ideal testing location for the feasibility of the use of wind energy.

The two have also sought, but were turned down for, monies from the National Science Foundation for experimental work in the Panhandle on using wind energy resources.

Nelson has noted in previous interviews with The News that while the use of giant windmills might be feasible to provide some electrical power, the major problem to be faced in harnassing wind energy is the problem of storage.

He said physicists are now working on acceptable storage units for large windmill-type facilities. Some concepts use the battery and some are eyeing the flywheel for storage.

The Governor's Energy Advisory Council initiated the search for proposals to study the future energy needs and future energy alternatives for Texans.

New resident loves new home

Walter Fernen's the kind of fellow who can make you choke on the words "Damn Yankee."

A native Brooklynite, more recently recuperating from a 22-year career with the Washington, D.C. fire department, Fernen is one of Canyon's newest and most likable residents.

He, his wife and 12-year-old daughter settled in Canyon Friday night after making two summer trips through the Panhandle.

On his first night in the city, Fernen, a veteran of riots who's single-handedly delivered 12 babies, went through the trauma of what to him was a new experience — a low pressure system disputed to be a tornado moved his trailer from its location in the street to a spot on the sidewalk outside the Canyon Creek Apartments, his temporary home.

For Fernen, already sporting a cowboy hat and Western boots, the brief Friday experience was not enough to dent his enthusiasm for his new-found home.

The burly 47-year-old ex-fire fighter points to the clean air, relatively mild climate and friendly people as the primary selling points for his family's move to Canyon.

Two years ago, the Fernens, who enjoy camping and travelling, came through the Amarillo area on their vacation. After stopping the car at a restaurant, the family emerged to take a deep breath of Texas Panhandle air. They loved it.

So much that they decided to vacation again

Our World

Whence Justice

By ANN BROWN

For nearly a century, Americans were proud of their Republic: a nation of laws that guaranteed "domestic tranquility and justice" for all its citizens.

But gradually the people relaxed their vigilance, and unscrupulous lawyers, for the love of money, began to twist the laws into meaningless gobbledegook. The twisting continued until our laws have been woven into a blanket of protection for the guilty.

Woe unto any honest man who lands in the courtroom. Perjury was once considered a crime. Now the courts encourage — often demand — a guilty man to plead innocent.

The fact that deranged people may plead guilty to crimes they have not committed has been used as a blanket excuse to exclude all guilty pleas unless corroborated.

The wall of protection for the guilty has become so thick it has excluded their innocent victims from any protection at all.

We are currently embroiled in another Civil War. This time no regional lines are drawn; the battle is between the lawless and the law-abiding — nationwide. And as in 1861, the federal government is solidly behind the aggressors.

The excuse given for the long, cruel, bloody war of brother against brother that slaughtered more than 4 million Americans was to preserve the Union. Actually, however, the South WAS excluded from the Union -- not on the terms they asked in seceding, but on terms dictated by their conquerors.

The once proud, gracious, and affluent South has been laboring for over a hundred years under burdens unknown to their northern neighbors: total military, political, and financial defeat.

Prior to the Civil War 10 of the 16 Presidents of the U.S. were from the South. Of the 21 Presidents elected since the Civil War, not one has been a Southerner. Only two had any claim to Southern roots.

Woodrow Wilson was born in Virginia, but he was governor of New Jersey when nominated for President. And Lyndon Johnson was from Texas, but he manifested no concern for problems peculiar to the South.

At least, the federal government purportedly supported the North against the South to preserve the Union. What reason could it possibly have for favoring the criminal element against their victims?

According to the FBI, violent crime has increased more than 200 per cent in the last 10 years. Murder has doubled; robbery has gone up 300 per cent, and rape has increased more than 400 per cent.

The opponents of the death penalty cite the 6th Commandment and the sanctity of human life as their reasons. This is another instance of "a little learning" being "a dangerous thing."

More than 140,000 Americans have been murdered since the last murderer was executed. Were their lives not sacred?

And the 6th Commandment does not say in the original Hebrew "Thou shall not kill." It said, "Thou shall not murder."

Hampered as they are by the courts, our police do arrest the majority of the perpetrators of violent crimes. But to what purpose? Felons frequently spend less time behind bars than it takes the police to put them there.

Murder, rape, and robbery may never be eliminated, but they can be curtailed. Killing in self defense has never been classified as murder. Unless the courts return to meting out punishment to fit the crimes, an enraged citizenry will eventually begin to fight back.

But mobs, whether rioting or ruling, seldom dispense much justice.

If thieves and robbers were made to work in prison until they had reimbursed their victims, American property would soon be safe again.

In Malaysia, where all convicted murderers are reportedly executed, they have a murder rate of 0.2 compared to our 9 per cent.

There is also a guaranteed method of preventing the repetition of rape. And that kind of justice would be an effective deterrent that would make our streets and parks safe again for women and children.

Where justice goes, tranquility automatically follows.

The New Game Show

By CARROLL WILSON

India's hungry thousands have finally stepped into the 20th Century with the advent of two Western inventions.

They may not have a square meal a day, but they've got television in their villages and a nuclear cloud over their heads.

Almost simultaneously last week, news media reported that India had successfully figured out what atomic energy is all about and had placed fifty TV sets in the village square of the more distant Indian provinces to help feed the minds if not the bodies of the still primitive natives.

The nuclear power, the Indians tell the world, is for "peaceful" purposes. And, the TVs are to help teach Indians, many of whom exist on less than 10 cents per day, better farming methods and so on.

We hear, though, that the favorite Indian television program since the introduction of the tube is a half-hour mid-morning game show called "Let's Make a Deal."

The typical show, we understand, goes something like this:

A group of 12 children, decked out in mouse ears, white sweat shirts and pleated dresses and long slacks hold hands as they skip on camera singing the show's theme song "Every Cloud Must Have a Silver Lining." After the final chorus, the smallest child, two front teeth missing and his stomach distended with malnutrition, steps forward to introduce the show's host, Tajma Hall.

Taj bounces onto the screen to the riotous applause and shouts of the audience.

"Good morning, ladies and gentlemen," he coos into the microphone. "Today's show is sponsored by the United States of America and the Soviet Union and is dedicated to the Red Chinese.

"But, before we get on with our game let's give a big hand to our children's choir. They're the newest members of the Nuclear Club and they're going to give us a rousing chorus of their club song.

The children with appropriate gestures and dance steps break into "Atomic Bomb," sung to the famous old tune of the Mickey Mouse Club of American fame:

"Who's the leader of the gang that's after you and me?

"ATO-MIC B-O-M-B. Atomic Bomb. Atomic Bomb.

"Forever let us look up to the sky.

"Come along and join the fun, it may kill you and me.

"ATO-MIC B-O-M-B."

"Now folks," grins Taj into the screen as the children skip offscreen, "Let's get on with 'Let's Make a Deal.' "

The scenario for the show, as you know, follows a series of trades, bad jokes and tasteless jibes and climaxes in the day's "Big Deal."

"Today's Big Deal," Taj tells his TV viewers, "is a biggie. Behind one curtain on our stage we have 600 million lives, an almost wrecked national economy and Indira Ghandi.

"Now let's see who's going to be playing for that big deal."

Taj strolls through the wildly waving and antsy audience and picks three participants for the big deal of the day.

"Sir," he says pointing to a man dressed in red, white and blue striped suit capped by a striped and starred top hat. "Yes, you. Stand up and tell us your name. Alright, now sir. I'll give you what's behind one of those three curtains on our stage if you've got a how-to-make-your-own-nuclear-weapons-kit in your billfold."

The starred-and-striped gentleman fumbles for his back pocket.

"While you look there, let's move on to another contestant," says Taj and he steps across the aisle to a man with slanty eyes decked out in Mao jacket.

"And, you, sir, I've got the same deal for you — whatever's behind one of those curtains on our stage if you've got a how-to-make-your-own-nuclear-weapons-kit in your billfold. Remember, today's big deal is behind one of those curtains."

As the second contestant fumbles in his billfold, riffling past drivers license, social security card and draft card, Taj moves down the aisle to pick the third contestant.

A husky man decked out in 1950s-style suit is gesturing wildly with his right shoe in his hand. Two body-guards are blasting automatic weapon fire into the air.

"You sir, yes you with the shoe in your hand. I've got the same deal for you — a curtain for a kit."

After a pause for station identification, Taj appears on the screen surrounded by the three contestants for the big deal of the day.

But, the show fades out without the viewer learning who the big winner is as Taj is pulled this way and that by the three contestants, each shouting in his ear that they have found the kits in their billfolds but are willing to negotiate.

"We'll throw in an F-4 Phantom Jet," screams Mr. Stars and Stripes as he grips Taj's coat-sleeve.

"We'll give you 50 tractors and a plow," shouts Mr. 1950s suit, tugging at Taj's trouser cuff.

"We'll offer. . . .

Thanks To City

Dear Carroll,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and your staff for your kind and patient assistance in the "Mr. and Mrs. X" problem. I would also like to thank you for the tactful manner in which you presented the case to the public, thus avoiding possible, unnecessary embarrassment.

As for the people of Canyon who responded to the problem, I do not think there is any way they can be adequately thanked, either by me or by Mr. and Mrs. X. Canyon's response to a plea for help was (to my car springs, at least) overwhelming, a graphic material and spiritual demonstration that the cynics are wrong: there is still love and generosity in abundance in this country.

As for Mrs. X, she (you'll pardon the expression) has her work cut out for her now. It was a very warming experience to watch her tearfully sort through the fine materials donated to her. I am happy to say that she is now hard at work finishing up several pieces of work she began some months ago. For those who asked about Mrs. X doing some specialized work for them, I can only quote her reply, which means little to my uneducated ear, but may be clear to others: "I can't thimble very well." I am still working on those special requests and will notify you when I find out something.

Again, my deepest thanks and appreciation to Canyon and the Canyon News. If I can ever be of service to either, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely yours,
Jim Couzzourt, PWWI

Unfair To Don Todd

Dear Mr. Martin:

The older generations insist young people should get involved in their government, but woe unto them if they don't happen to agree with the ruling powers. There seems to be room for yes men only.

The ridicule and accusations hurled at Dr. Donald Todd in last Sunday's Canyon News would tempt us all to refrain from any participation in civic affairs if we didn't have to keep on paying the bills. I doubt, however, if anyone who knows the facts thinks any less of Dr. Todd, or any more of the editorial policies of your paper.

Knowing your reputation of fair play, I expect to see either a list of your misrepresentations that Dr. Todd and any other citizens are supposed to have made, or an apology for the abuse that has been heaped upon them.

Sincerely,
Patricia Tilger

Burglaries on rise here; chief asks locals' help

Burglaries of homes, businesses and new buildings under construction are on the increase in Canyon, Police Chief Al Stewart said last week.

Stewart said burglaries of establishments are rising throughout the Panhandle area.

He said statistics indicate a national trend in the increase of burglaries.

Stewart said he feels the state of the national economy has an impact on the number of burglaries committed.

He said inflation and the higher cost of living may be forcing some persons with marginal incomes into the criminal realm to make ends meet.

Only a handful of the burglaries committed in Canyon have been cleared by arrest, Stewart said, because burglary is one of the hardest crimes to solve.

"There are no witnesses," he said. "It's not a crime of emotion, it's usually planned, and if they're good they won't leave any evidence and will probably have a fence lined up to get rid of the stuff quickly."

Stewart said several major burglaries have occurred in the city in the last nine months.

Several homes under construction in the Hunsley Hills area were hit last fall. In addition, more recently the golf pro shop was burglarized in that area.

A downtown drugstore has been burglaized twice in recent months with large amounts of drugs taken in each entry.

The new Canyon hospital was recently burglarized with about $2000 worth of tools and supplies taken.

Several other homes have also been burglarized.

While burglaries may be on the rise in the city, Stewart said there has also been an increase in the awareness of citizens to the dangers of burglary.

"There's been a tremendous change in Canyon," he said. "When I first came here I worked the midnight shift and sometimes we'd find 10 or 15 businesses with their doors open. Now, it's rare to find one."

Even so, says the chief, residents of Canyon need to become more aware that their homes could be potential targets for burglary.

"When people think of 'Support Your Police,' they usually think of that as a pay raise or something like that," he said. "But, we can exist without their support" in other areas.

Areas such as being more watchful of their neighbors' homes and property and more suspicious of strange trucks or vehicles in the neighborhood.

Stewart said citizens who note a strange truck or vehicle or person in their neighborhood should not hesitate to call police.

He admitted that in many cases such calls can be embarrassing because there is no foul play involved, but he said such calls could also save residents the problems of being burglarized.

An Investment In Your Community That Will Pay Dividends Now.

CANYON FIRE DEPARTMENT

The present facility which houses the equipment and provides space for the volunteers is totally inadequate. The most serious deficiency is that it constitutes a real hazard to the volunteers during emergency responses.

CITY OF CANYON
LIBRARY

The present Library is housed in an old World War II barracks building which is totally inadequate and presents a serious fire hazard.

PROJECTED PROJECT COST

$1,190,088	Estimated construction cost
75,000	Contingency and furnishings
15,000	Finance agent and legal fees
58,200	Remaining architectural fee
$1,338,288	TOTAL COST

REVENUE RESOURCES

$ 520,000	Water & Sewer - capital
140,000	General Fund - capital
182,000	Revenue Sharing — on hand
81,000	Revenue Sharing — due during construction
$ 923,000	Available during construction
220,000	Revenue sharing — due after construction
$1,143,000	TOTAL REVENUE AVAILABLE
195,288	Requiring short term financing

This financial program does not jeopardize any of the present or future operations of the City. Adequate capital reserve will be maintained in both the General and Water & Sewer Funds:

General Fund Minimum Reserve	$100,000
Water & Sewer Fund Minimum Reserve	$200,000

NO INCREASE IN PROPERTY TAXES.

The current Police Department is located in an old lumber yard facility which was never designed to house a law enforcement operation. The building is a significant fire hazard.

The present administrative facilities are located in an old bank building constructed early in 1906. The building has become totally inadequate in space and ease of service to the public.

School Trustees Okay Bus Route

County school trustees approved Thursday morning a new school bus route for the Canyon School District after learning that local school buses traveled more than 350,000 miles during the last academic year.

The new route would mean more state-support money for the local school bus system. The route change is from a shuttle bus used to take students from the Siesta Park area to the Gene Howe School to a regular bus route.

Bobby Bird, director of transportation for the district, said state auditors suggested unofficially the shuttle bus route be made a regular route during an inspection tour last summer.

With the addition of the shuttle route to the regular route schedule, Canyon district will have 20 bus routes picking up children in rural portions of Randall County.

In other business, Bird explained that the school district has been unable to contract for fuel supplies through the past year, but has had no real problem contracting for fuel when needed. He noted that prices for fuel for the buses has doubled, however.

Mrs. Hefley Named To Heart Board

Mrs. Pauline M. Hefley of Canyon was among three recently elected as representative directors for Region 1 of the American Heart Association.

Also named to director positions were Dr. Ronald Fortner of Amarillo and Carl D. Aldrich of Borger. The three new directors plan to attend the State Assembly at Fort Worth in June and will represent the region on the State Board of the American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate.

A native of Fort Worth, Mrs. Hefley is a first female agent in Amarillo with the Southland Life Insurance Company. She is a graduate of Southland Life's business and professional schools and is a qualified life member of the Woman Leaders Roundtable.

last year in Palo Duro Canyon and environs and in the process "fell in love with the people and the climate."

The people and the climate are of a different breed to the Irish fireman who at one time had aspirations of becoming a New York City cop.

Following the war, Fernen opted for a job with the Washington Fire Department rather than a stint with New York's Finest.

"Back then it was real good," Fernen relates in a definitely Yankee clip. "We were more-or-less a close-knit group," a group with esprit des corps.

As a Washington fireman, Fernen was assigned to the rescue squad, which in that city handles first calls on automobile accidents and just about any other disaster which befalls man.

Fernen tells a story of the kind of blood and guts which has made many a good television series.

During this 22-year career, for example, he delivered 12 babies including one set of twins.

"After the first one, it's not so bad," Fernen said.

For one rescue operation, Fernen was cited and awarded a commendation by officials.

A worker had fallen down a man-hole and had been overcome by noxious sewer gas.

Fernen and another rescue worker were lowered into the 52-foot deep manhole by ropes, heavy masks covering their faces.

The heat soared to above 130 degrees in the depths of the manhole as the two firemen worked frantically to tie ropes around the dying worker.

Finally, fellow firemen above ground raised the worker and then Fernen and his cohort, who collapsed once they had regained pure Washington air.

For Fernen the experience was one of his most satisfying, if not altogether unique.

"I feel like myself that we saved that man's life," he said.

It was that kind of experience which was the essence of his professionalism for Fernen, but a good bit of the essence rubbed off as he and fellow firemen became the targets for rioter-hurled bricks and rioter-fired shots during the 1968 Washington riots.

He described the flavor of the times during the riots as "unbelieveable."

The morning the riots broke out, Fernen said he was crossing the bridge into Washington "and it looked like London during the war with fires and smoke coming up here and there."

Fernen found himself not only having to fight fires but also demonstrators, rioters and snipers as he worked.

In one particular instance, he recalls rounding a corner while at the wheel of a large truck only to find a man standing in the street blocking his path to a fire.

"He wouldn't get out of the way, so I got out and walked over and cold-cocked him in the middle of the street there," Fernen said.

He made it to the fire, but upon returning to the fire house, a vintage 1898 building, he learned that his street fracas had caused him more trouble than he'd expected.

"I had to write out four special reports and the deputy chief called and I thought I was going to lose my job," he said. "Then a lawyer called and wanted to know if I'd used any racial epithets."

The beginning of the end of Fernen's feelings of affection for his job came with the riots of '69 and deteriorated further as the city's racial problem increased.

Esprit des corps was replaced in the department by aparthied, voluntarily chosen by black members of the department who desired to remain aloof from their white counterparts.

With 18 years in, Fernen decided to stick it out with the department for the sake of his retirement pay.

Now, in Canyon, Texas, Fernen says he might again sign on to become a Washington fireman, but only if the circumstances were as they were in the early '50s.

For young men considering such a career, Fernen says look somewhere besides Washington, D.C.

pursuing his duties, said such insurance could probably be purchased and paid for by the county since any such suit would result from his official capacity as district attorney.

The county pays for a $5000 bond for the sheriff and district attorney, but the bond does not cover such things as civil suits.

Sheriff Longest said he is not covered by such insurance and that most county sheriffs are not covered.

He said the National Sheriff's Association provides a policy at a reasonable rate, but that he has not taken advantage of the policy.

"Anybody can sue anybody for anything," Longest admitted, even though he said the insurance coverage would be nice to have but would probably have to be paid by himself.

Loudder said Police Chief Stewart and the other city patrolmen are covered under an insurance policy which protects them from such actions as suits involving false arrest.

But, he said he's not sure the policy would cover civil rights claims.

"You can bet I'll check into it now, though," he said.

While the county and city are required by law to provide counsel to defend employees against suits filed concerning actions taken while they were on duty or pursuing city or county business, the law prohibits the governments from taking responsibility for paying any judgments which may go against the individuals involved.

In a suit situation, then, if a judgment went against the county employee, he would be expected to pay the judgment himself.

Dallas Sheriff Clarence Jones, for example, has been decided against in two suits and has had to pay $6500 and $750 from his own pocket.

The Dallas report indicates some cities do carry insurance for their officers' protection. Albuquerque, N.M. for example, carries such insurance.

Funds Use Confirmed

Confirmation of the city contention that use of excess water and sewer funds to help finance construction of a new city hall came last week from the Dallas bond attornies who are handling a 1972 water bond reissue.

Partners in the firm McCall, Parkhurst & Horton of Dallas wrote City Manager George Loudder that use of excess funds from the water and sewer fund in construction of the city hall would be considered "lawful" use of the funds.

The letter was in response to a letter written by Loudder following the appearance in some Canyon circles of a leaflet apparently penned by defeated City Commission candidate Mrs. C.S. Thompson, which apparently contended that use of the excess funds would be other than legal.

The cryptic leaflet included various sections of an ordinance passed by city commissioners in 1972 when they reissued bonds originally issued in 1957 to finance the water field at Umbarger.

The leaflet failed to mention one section of the ordinance which stipulated that any funds not encumbered by other sections of the law could be used "for any lawful purpose."

In the letter received last week from the Dallas bond attornies, the city position that construction of a city hall would constitute a legal use of such reserve and unencumbered funds was backed.

"It is our opinion," states the letter, "that payment of a part of the cost of construction of the proposed civic center complex is a lawful purpose for which such excess revenues may be used."

Commissioners plan to use about $500,000 from unencumbered funds in the water and sewer fund to help finance the $1.3 million complex.

Voters will go to the polls Tuesday to determine the fate of the building project. If they approve construction, commissioners will proceed with seeking bids for the job. If the ballot issue fails, commissioners will have to reconsider the more than a year of planning which has gone into the construction project.

TMRS and the county system, said he has not seen or studied the EEOC decision.

He said he would obtain a copy, read it and if action was necessary would approach county commissioners for consideration.

He said he also wanted to furnish a copy of the decision to the director of the county and district retirement system.

Analysis of the county system indicates the system utilizes actuarial tables which require women to work five years longer than men to receive equal benefits.

Mrs. Marguerite Strain, a city employee almost 30 years, filed a complaint with the EEOC concerning the TMRS about two years ago.

She is eligible for retirement in October from the city.

TMRS. . .

withdraw from the TMRS and rests his statement, he said, on legal grounds.

"When we entered it we signed an agreement that we would not withdraw from the system," he said.

He said the city has no control over the actuarial tables or benefit schedules used by the TMRS to figure benefits for employee-members.

Loudder, who himself has written the Washington EEOC office to find out when a decision would be rendered in Mrs. Strain's behalf, said he's "glad they finally had the initiative to get this done and reach a decision they should have reached two years ago."

The decision reached by the EEOC and included in the letter to Loudder apparently disagrees with his interpretation of the city's responsibility in the negotiation procedure.

"The TMRS Handbook of Information states that once a city has joined TMRS it may not terminate membership in the system," states the decision. "The City appears to raise this as a defense. The important factor, however, which is undisputed, is that the City joined TMRS voluntarily."

In a "summary of investigation" section of the decision, the author notes that it is undisputed that the TMRS in figuring benefits for Mrs. Strain uses "separate actuarial tables for each sex and that 'The life expectancy tables which are used by the System reveal that female annuitants have a life expectancy more than five years greater than that of males of equivalent age.'

"Thus, a female of a given salary and length of service retiring from (the TMRS) will receive substantially smaller payments each month than will a male of the same salary and length of service. It is this disparity that (Mrs. Strain) alleges amounts to unlawful sex discrimination.

"TMRS argues that equal monthly payments to female retirees would in fact discriminate in their favor because females, statistically, live longer than men. The logic of this argument is that usually used to support discrimination: an appeal to the average characteristics of a particular sex, race, or other group protected under Title VII. But no person knows when he or she will die," the decision continues.

The author of the decision brief says that the TMRS argument "misses the point.

"All that TMRS's sex-segregated actuarial tables purport to predict is risk spread over a large number of people; the tables do not predict the length of any particular individual's life.

"In our view, any use of sex-segregated actuarial tables that results in payment of different periodic pension benefits to males and females is highly suspect. Because actuarial tables do not predict the length of any individual's life, any claim that such tables may be used to assure equal pension payments over a lifetime between males and females must fail."

To comply with EEOC and other federal guidelines and laws, says the decision, the TMRS must pay benefits to males and females in equivalent circumstances on an equal basis.

Speaking to a TMRS contention that actuarial tables figured regardless of sex would mean that men members would subsidize payments to women, the decision states:

"This argument, we think, contains a fatal flaw: The advantages males now enjoy rest on an unlawful system. In short, were uni-sex actuarial tables used, males would fare no worse than they would have had the retirement system been operated in a fair lawful manner all along."

cents per mile and $30 per diem, he would have spent less money than that paid for airline tickets.

The correct figures indicate the two flights cost Fulgenzi or the county a total of $214.89. Correct figures show if Fulgenzi had travelled for 12 cents per mile and $30 per diem, the county would have paid a total of $292.80.

ATTENTION CANYON WATER USERS!

ARE YOU AWARE OF YOUR DEBTS?

If the City of Canyon builds a new LUXURIOUS CITY HALL COMPLEX at this time, an ADDITIONAL DEBT OF $195,288 plus interest will INCREASE THE CITY'S TOTAL INDEBTEDNESS to MORE THAN ONE-MILLION DOLLARS.

ARE YOU AWARE OF THE FOLLOWING FACTS?

The WATER and SEWER CAPITAL, valued at $520,000, has accumulated from the payments of YOUR WATER BILLS. This is NOT Revenue Sharing money. This is YOUR WATER MONEY. CONSIDER CAREFULLY HOW this money should be spent.

DO YOU REALIZE THAT $520,000 of the $842,000, scheduled to be on hand at the beginning of construction of the proposed Municipal Facilities Building, WILL COME FROM YOUR WATER and SEWER FUNDS? ONLY $182,000 will be on hand FROM REVENUE SHARING FUNDS.

WITH THE PRESENT DEPLETION OF OUR WATER RESOURCES, SHOULD WE DIVERT $520,000 FROM OUR WATER and SEWER CAPITAL TO BUILD A CITY COMPLEX IN VIEW OF THE PROBABILITY THAT WE MAY SOON NEED TO EXPAND OUR WATER RESOURCES?

IF THIS EXPANSION BECOMES NECESSARY, AND IF THE WATER and SEWER CAPITAL HAS BEEN REDUCED TO A LOW LEVEL, THE CITY HAS THE RIGHT TO RAISE YOUR WATER RATES TO PAY FOR THE EXPANSION OF OUR WATER RESOURCES.

THINK ABOUT THIS PROBABILITY when you CAST YOUR VOTE.

Women's Chamber Group To Welcome Members

The women's division of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce will welcome any prospective new members at the ice cream social to be held family style Tuesday evening, June 4, at 8:00 p.m. at Conner Park in Canyon, in conclusion of a membership drive.

All local women have been invited to join the group which meets six times each year. The main objectives of the group are to participate in the growth and activities of Canyon with emphasis in promotion for betterment of individuals making their homes here, according to Evelyn Trice, president.

Membership dues are $12 per year and all women may join the group whether their husbands are members of the Canyon Chamber or not.

"Of course it is to all our benefit when the husbands are also active members of the Chamber," stated Mrs. Trice.

Several projects involving growth and beautification of Canyon are in the planning stages presently by women's chamber members including the planting of native pecan trees in yards throughout the city and county. Chamber women presented pecans to Canyon Girl Scouts for planting the new trees recently.

In addition, the women's division is working on placing a social activity calendar at the Canyon Chamber of Commerce office for listing community activities and also working toward the development of a cultural center at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum where items would be collected and displayed to eventually evolve as a research center under sponsorship of the women's chamber.

Promotion for planting chrysanthemums in maroon and white supporting the beautification of West Texas State University is also being handled by the women's division.

Among other women's division projects, the group has a representative group working in cooperation with Operation Facelift for Campus Enhancement at WTSU and also is cooperating and supporting plans for beautification of the city of Canyon for the Bicentennial Celebration committee.

Dr. Lacy Directing Center

Ronald R. Lacy, M.D. who studied at West Texas State University 1959-63 earning his pre-med degree here has been given a one year contract to furnish doctors on a 24-hour basis, 7 days each week, for the Emergency Receiving Center of the Amarillo Hospital District.

Dr. Lacy's contract took effect at midnight May 31. He is presently recruiting three other physicians for the ERC which is located at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. Contracted by the board of managers of the Amarillo Hospital District, Dr. Lacy will furnish the physicians for the job while the Amarillo Hospital District will furnish the facility, nursing staff and billing for emergency care.

Dr. Lacy plans to have four doctors on staff working 12 hour shifts with one doctor on duty at all times. He will replace Rodney D. Bobbitt of San Antonio who has been handling the Emergency Center.

A native of Turkey, Texas, Dr. Lacy was employed with Buffalo Barber Shop in Canyon during the 1959-63 period while he was attending West Texas State. In 1967 he earned the degree of medicine from the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston. His internship was at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln, Nebraska during 1967-68 and he then entered private practice of medicine at Sunray during 1968-72.

In 1972, Dr. Lacy opened a private practice in Amarillo. His private practice patients will be cared for at the Emergency Receiving Center during a brief period of transition.

Looking ahead to next fall, as we will be doing each week until the start of football season, Ron Mills, head football coach at CHS, is hoping to get a lot of help from Rusty Holliday and Bob Lee.

Holliday, a senior next year, is six feet one inch tall and weighs 195 pounds. He plays offensive half back and defensive linebacker. Holliday came from Floydada and played on the JV squad because of the transfer rule. Holliday will be working the harvest season with his dad this summer. This should help to strengthen him for the coming season.

Lee is a six feet two inch 262 pound defensive tackle for CHS. Lee, who will be only a junior next year, has good agility and good quickness for his size and age. Lee will also play offensive strong side tackle this next year. Lee will be working for his dad at the Big Texan Steak House in Amarillo. With all that food around, he may be bigger than 262 come this next season.

One thing to note about Lee. His hobby is ice skating and playing ice hockey. He could play goalie for my team any day.

Bob Sloan, baseball coach for Canyon High School, feels that since Ed Lair has signed with Oklahoma State University other offers will be coming to Canyon baseball players in the future. Sloan said that Canyon High has the talent. He feels that this is the start for things to come.

Lair is the only baseball player to receive a scholarship in the three years that Sloan has been coaching at CHS. Sloan said that there is a possibility of one more scholarship being offered a Canyon player this year.

With the end of school comes the end to spring sports at Canyon High School. B. B. Kendrick, golf coach, head basketball coach and assistant coach in the football program, coached his golf team to second place in district and sixth in regional competition.

Kendrick will lose two seniors from his golf squad. Brad Garner, who played on the district and the regional team, and Pat Cannon, who played on the regional team, will be lost in graduation.

Kendrick sees even better things for next year with the majority of his golf squad returning. Also, the freshmen who are coming up will offer able assistance. The freshmen this year won their district championship.

Phil Davis and Mitch Shadix, returning as seniors this next year, Bill Turner and Dewey Wilson, returning as juniors this next year, and Bryan Garner and Craig Howard, who will be sophomores this next year, will probably make up the number one team for the coming season.

It is hoped that there will be four or five tournaments scheduled for the coming fall for golf teams. Golf is usually a spring sport for most schools. Tournaments are scheduled in Borger, Plainview and Amarillo.

It is going to be crowded in the "field house" at CHS this next year. Approximately 130 to 150 boys are expected to suit out in the cramped quarters. There will be 12 or more boys to each shower.

Coach V. J. Duncan, tennis coach, said that this year's tennis team had progressed well during the season. He said that this was the best team he had coached in the four years of the program. Duncan said that the team could compete on a level with the better schools in the area.

Graduation took its toll of the tennis team. Duncan said that he lost his number one singles and number one doubles team for both boys and girls.

Duncan said that there were about 10 members of the squad who would return this next year but they would need more experience.

Looking to junior high graduates for next season, Duncan said there are several coming up who will be sophomores this next year who will offer much help. Among these '75 sophomores are Mark Sullivan and Alexis Hefley. They competed in Division II this past year and made good showings.

Eight out of ten members of the CHS varsity basketball team were lost Friday night. They graduated from CHS. Coach Kendrick said that even though next season would be a time for rebuilding, he thinks the team will be stronger than many expect. He said that the near 50 boys who have signed up for basketball and no other sport, are working hard as they look to next year. Only three of the 50 will be seniors this next year.

The only two returning varsity players are Lynn Wright, who was named to the all-district team, and Ken Cooper. Wright will be a senior next year and Cooper will be a junior.

Kendrick said that the junior varsity this past season did not have a good season but the members of the JV are working hard for the coming season.

Canyon will have 13 home games this next year. They are scheduled to play in the 54 team tourney in Amarillo. They will also be taking on 4-A teams from Amarillo, Borger and Lubbock. There are 33 games scheduled for the varsity, junior varsity and sophomore teams.

Kendrick said that he would carry 14 players on the varsity for the next year. Twenty will be carried on the JV and twenty on the sophomore squad. Kendrick questions how he will manage this 54 player situation when he has 63 boys out for basketball.

Kendrick said it would be hard to tell a boy he cannot suit up even for workouts because of the limited space.

Summer Term Begins Monday

Students will return to Canyon Monday for registration for the first summer session at West Texas State University.

Class instruction for the term begins Tuesday.

A wide variety of credit courses are offered for the first session in the university's various departments.

In addition, other special workshops and courses are offered, including special courses for public school teachers.

Beginning freshmen will attend orientation and academic advisement from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Monday in the university complex south, room 101. Registration for beginning freshmen will be from 3-4 p.m. at the activities center.

All other students will follow an alphabetic time schedule based on the first letter of the student's last name.

Tuesday will be final day for payment of fees without a penalty fee. Late registration will continue through Friday.

Special workshops for school teachers include beginning guitar, music therapy and choral conductors.

The business and math departments are also offering special courses.

Two Sign With WT Tennis

A pair of standout high school tennis players — Todd Reed of Winfield, Kan., and Bobby Kleinecke of Galveston, have signed athletic scholarship agreements with West Texas State University coach David Kent.

The players are the second and third to be signed by Kent since his Buffaloes won their third Missouri Valley Conference championship in four years two weeks ago in Denton. The first player to sign was Wayne Marsh of Cowley County Junior College in Arkansas City, Kan. His older brother was the number one player at West Texas this past season, but has now graduated.

Reed, who compiled a 121-8 record as a singles player and a 21-4 doubles standard in four years as a high school player, is currently ranked number three in the Missouri Valley section in 16 and under singles.

The 6-1, 160-pounder has captured the singles championship in the Arkansas Valley League for four consecutive years. He won the state Class AAAAA-AAAA doubles title in 1971 and 1972. For the past two years he has won the state Class AAA-AA-A singles championship.

Reed, who will major in physical education at West Texas State, was coached in high school by his father — Jim Reed. He was also a starter on the basketball team which won the state Class AAA-AA-A championship.

"Todd is one of the outstanding high school recruits in the southwest," said Kent. "He is everything a good collegiate player should be — he's fast, dedicated, strong and a great athlete. In a men's singles tournament in Oklahoma this past summer he defeated former Palo Duro tennis coach Steve Prosser, who is an excellent player."

Kleinecke, along with his doubles partner Doug Rodwell, Jr., cut a wide swipe through south Texas tennis circles. They won four Texas Catholic Interscholastic League doubles championships while at O'Connell High School for coach Vince Stiglich.

The 5-11, 170-pound Kleinecke, who owns singles victories over such high school standouts as Brandon Coleman, Carter Lomax, Mark Silberman, Ross Persons, Dick Warfield, Ben Nixon, John Clements and Cam Janse, gained most of his high school honors while playing doubles with Rodwell.

The O'Connell doubles team twice defeated the strong Houston Memorial team of Coleman and Kevin Creedmore — winning 6-2, 6-3 once and 6-0, 6-2 another time.

In 142 doubles matches, the pair lost only seven times. In research done by people at O'Connell High, it could not be found where two players combined to win four consecutive state championships in high school in any other state, at anytime. They were unbeaten in doubles play for the last three years.

Kleinecke, who will major in physical education at West Texas, was highly recruited by Alabama, Oklahoma, Lamar University and Oklahoma State.

"Bobby is a fabulous doubles player and has the potential to be just as outstanding in singles," said Kent. "He plays the power-type tennis which is so necessary in college and his adjustment to collegiate tennis should come quickly."

Golf Classes Set At Hunsley Hills

Junior golf classes will open June 4 at Hunsley Hills golf course. Classes will also open for ladies on June 5.

Ladies classes will be held on Wednesday and Thursday at 9 a.m. each day.

Those desiring more information are asked to call 655-4000. Dale Newman is the pro at Hunsley Hills.

Defensive Driving Offered HD Agents

A defensive driving program for home economics extension agents was held Thursday in Amarillo with 15 area agents involved in the professional improvements program including Becky Hall, Randall County HD Agent.

Arrangements for the program were made by Kathy Hufnagle, an extension agent in Potter County. Miss Hufnagle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Hufnagle of Canyon and grew up in 4-H activities here.

PENTECOST SUNDAY

ACTS 2:1-4, 37-39

AND when [a]the day of Pentecost was fully come, [b]they were all with one accord in one place.

2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and [c]it filled all the house where they were sitting.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them.

4 And [d]they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began [e]to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

37 ¶ Now when they heard this, [g]they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 Then Peter said unto them, [h]Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

39 For the promise is unto you, and [i]to your children, and [k]to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

IT IS STILL HAPPENING!

The youth who had just completed his junior high school year at Buckeye was the son of Clifton (Hank) Newberry, Jr. and his wife, Doris Ann, and a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Worth Jennings, Jr. of Canyon.

Economics Course Added At WTSU

Dr. R. P. Muir, West Texas State University professor of economics, has announced the addition of a new course in economics to the school curriculum.

Economics 101, Current Economic Issues, will be offered for the first time during the first summer session 1974. It will meet five days a week at 9:00 a.m. starting June 4, and can be registered for by any college student, June 3.

Dr. Muir, who will teach the course, outlined its goals: "Economics 101 is designed for every man and every woman — the non-majors. It is aimed at producing an intelligent consumer, an informed voter, and a good citizen; one who can consume in his best interest and get the most out of his dollar."

Issues such as inflation, poverty and welfare, the dollar crisis, the energy crisis, and price controls will be discussed in the course this summer, but Dr. Muir remarked that the topics will change as problems change.

"We hope to see this course continued — even made a graduation requirement," said the professor. "Very few Americans — less than 4 per cent to be exact — have any training in economics at all. This course is designed to combat some of that ignorance."

During the summer she will be working on campus at St. John's.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Holladay, secondary curriculum director for the Canyon Independent School District.
